1. Why Is Delimitation in the News?

Reports appearing in the newspaper index dated 27 November 2026 suggest that a delimitation bill may be tabled in the Lok Sabha during the following week.

The reported development has renewed attention on the relationship between population growth, parliamentary representation, constitutional safeguards and the political interests of different States.

> Important Current Affairs Clarification:
> A report suggesting that a bill may be introduced does not establish that Parliament has introduced, passed or enacted the proposed legislation. The actual legislative text and parliamentary proceedings must be verified before drawing conclusions about any proposed redistribution of seats.

2. What Is Delimitation?

Delimitation refers to the process of determining or redrawing the boundaries of electoral constituencies and, where constitutionally permitted, readjusting the allocation of legislative seats based on population.

Its primary objective is to promote relatively equitable electoral representation and ensure that constituency boundaries reflect demographic changes within the applicable constitutional framework.

Major Objectives of Delimitation

- Promoting equitable representation of citizens.
- Reducing excessive population disparities between constituencies.
- Reflecting demographic and geographical changes.
- Determining appropriate constituency boundaries.
- Implementing constitutional provisions relating to reserved constituencies.
- Strengthening democratic legitimacy.

3. Constitutional Provisions Related to Delimitation

Article	Subject	UPSC Relevance
Article 81	Composition of the Lok Sabha	Population-based representation
Article 82	Readjustment after each census	Parliamentary delimitation
Article 170	Composition of State Legislative Assemblies	State-level delimitation
Article 330	Reservation of seats for SCs and STs in Lok Sabha	Political representation

Article	Subject	UPSC Relevance
Article 332	Reservation of seats for SCs and STs in State Assemblies	Inclusive representation
Article 327	Power of Parliament to make provisions relating to elections	Electoral legislation
Article 329	Bar to interference by courts in specified electoral matters	Constitutional safeguards

UPSC Prelims Memory Trick:

Article 81 = Lok Sabha Composition

Article 82 = Readjustment after Census

Article 170 = State Legislative Assemblies

Article 330 = SC/ST Reservation in Lok Sabha

Article 332 = SC/ST Reservation in State Assemblies

4. Historical Background of Delimitation in India

India has periodically undertaken delimitation exercises through statutory commissions established under parliamentary legislation.

Year	Historical Development
1952	First Delimitation Commission
1963	Second Delimitation Commission
1973	Third Delimitation Commission
1976	42nd Constitutional Amendment introduced the seat-allocation freeze framework.
2001	84th Constitutional Amendment extended the constitutional freeze.
2002	Fourth Delimitation Commission constituted under the Delimitation Act, 2002.
2003	87th Constitutional Amendment enabled constituency readjustment using the 2001 Census.
2008	Major constituency boundary changes under the fourth delimitation exercise.
2023	106th Constitutional Amendment linked women's legislative reservation implementation to a future census and delimitation exercise.

5. Why Was Parliamentary Seat Allocation Frozen?

The constitutional freeze was designed partly to ensure that States implementing population control measures were not disadvantaged in parliamentary representation because of their demographic performance.

42nd Constitutional Amendment Act, 1976

The amendment introduced a freeze on readjustment of legislative seat allocation based on population until the relevant census following the year 2000.

CIVIL SERVICE GURUKUL
www.civilservicegurukul.com

84th Constitutional Amendment Act, 2001

The amendment extended the freeze on interstate allocation of Lok Sabha seats and the total number of seats in State Legislative Assemblies until the relevant figures of the first census taken after 2026 have been published.

87th Constitutional Amendment Act, 2003

The amendment enabled readjustment of constituency boundaries using the 2001 Census without lifting the freeze on the overall allocation of seats.

> Important UPSC Exam Trap:
> The constitutional reference is to the publication of relevant figures from the first census taken after 2026. It does not mean that parliamentary seat redistribution automatically takes place on 1 January 2027.

6. What Is the Delimitation Commission?

The Delimitation Commission is a statutory body constituted under parliamentary legislation to carry out the delimitation exercise within the applicable legal and constitutional framework.

Composition Under the Delimitation Act, 2002

- A serving or retired Supreme Court judge as Chairperson.
- The Chief Election Commissioner or an Election Commissioner nominated by the Chief Election Commissioner.
- The State Election Commissioner of the concerned State.

The Commission also receives assistance from associate members as prescribed by law.

Major Functions

- Determining electoral constituency boundaries.
- Considering population distribution and geographical conditions.
- Identifying constituencies reserved for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes under applicable provisions.
- Publishing proposals and considering representations.
- Issuing final delimitation orders in accordance with law.

7. Census vs Delimitation Commission vs Election Commission

Institution	Primary Responsibility
Census Authorities	Collecting and publishing demographic information.
Parliament	Providing the applicable legislative framework for delimitation.
Delimitation Commission	Readjustment and determination of constituencies within the prescribed framework.
Election Commission of India	Superintendence, direction and control of elections under Article 324.

8. Why Is Delimitation a Federalism Challenge?

India's States have experienced different rates of population growth, urbanisation, migration and demographic transition.

A population-based redistribution of parliamentary seats could increase the relative representation of faster-growing States. Conversely, States that achieved lower fertility rates may be concerned about a reduction in their relative share of parliamentary influence.

The central challenge is to balance the democratic principle of equal representation with the constitutional importance of federal diversity.

Major Dimensions of the Debate

Dimension	Key Issue
Political	Relative parliamentary influence of different States.
Demographic	Differences in population growth and fertility rates.
Economic	Potential implications for national policy priorities and regional interests.
Social	Representation of disadvantaged communities.
Geographical	Representation of remote, mountainous and sparsely populated regions.
Constitutional	Balancing electoral equality and federal principles.
Ethical	Fairness, distributive justice and democratic inclusion.

9. Arguments in Favour of Delimitation

- Electoral Equality: Reducing substantial differences in population represented by elected members.
- Democratic Legitimacy: Reflecting changes in population distribution.
- Urban Representation: Addressing demographic changes in rapidly growing urban regions.
- Administrative Efficiency: Improving constituency design where existing boundaries no longer reflect settlement patterns.
- Social Inclusion: Updating reserved constituency arrangements within the constitutional framework.
- Representative Accountability: Addressing excessive variations in constituency population and associated public service demands.

10. Major Concerns Associated with Delimitation

- Potential reduction in the relative parliamentary influence of lower-population-growth States.
- Concerns regarding demographic performance and population stabilisation incentives.
- Possible regional political imbalances.
- Challenges in maintaining adequate representation of smaller States.
- Representation of linguistic and cultural minorities.
- Administrative difficulties arising from constituency boundary changes.

www.civilservicegurukul.com

- Concerns regarding transparency and political neutrality.
- Potential disputes over the criteria used for redistribution.

> UPSC Mains Analytical Point:
> A State's relative share of parliamentary representation can decline even if its absolute number of seats remains unchanged. Aspirants should distinguish between absolute seat allocation and relative political influence.

11. Delimitation and Women's Reservation

The Constitution (106th Amendment) Act, 2023, commonly associated with the Nari Shakti Vandan Adhiniyam, provides for reservation of approximately one-third of seats for women in the Lok Sabha, State Legislative Assemblies and the Legislative Assembly of Delhi.

Its implementation is linked to a delimitation exercise undertaken for this purpose after publication of the relevant figures of the first census taken after commencement of the amendment.

Consequently, the timing and legal framework of a future delimitation exercise are also relevant to women's political representation.

12. Way Forward: Balancing Democracy and Federalism

Transparent Constitutional Framework

Publish the proposed legislation, constitutional basis and methodology before drawing conclusions about redistribution.

Consultation with States

Encourage meaningful dialogue with States across regions to address concerns regarding political representation and demographic performance.

Independent Implementation

Ensure that constituency determination follows objective criteria and the applicable statutory process.

Protection of Vulnerable Communities

Consider the representation of disadvantaged communities, geographical minorities and remote populations within the constitutional framework.

Evidence-Based Policy

Use reliable census information and transparent demographic analysis rather than speculative projections.

Consider Alternative Institutional Designs

Evaluate possible arrangements such as expansion of parliamentary capacity and transitional safeguards, subject to constitutional feasibility and broad political consultation.

Separate Different Delimitation Questions

Distinguish interstate seat allocation, constituency boundary readjustment within States and reservation of constituencies. Each involves different constitutional and administrative considerations.

14. UPSC Prelims Practice MCQs

Question 1

Which Article of the Indian Constitution specifically provides for readjustment of Lok Sabha seats and constituencies after a census?

A. Article 80
B. Article 82
C. Article 110
D. Article 280

Reveal Answer and Explanation

Correct Answer: B – Article 82

Article 82 provides for readjustment after each census in the manner determined by Parliament through law, subject to constitutional restrictions.

Exam Trigger: Readjustment after Census = Article 82.

Question 2

Consider the following statements:

1. The Delimitation Commission is a statutory body.

www.civilservicegurukul.com

2. The Election Commission of India is a constitutional body.

3. Article 170 relates to State Legislative Assemblies.

Which of the statements given above are correct?

A. 1 and 2 only

B. 2 and 3 only

C. 1 and 3 only

D. 1, 2 and 3

Reveal Answer and Explanation

Correct Answer: D – 1, 2 and 3

All three statements are correct. The Delimitation Commission derives its authority from parliamentary legislation, while the Election Commission is established under Article 324.

Question 3

Which Constitutional Amendment extended the freeze on interstate allocation of Lok Sabha seats until publication of the relevant figures of the first census taken after 2026?

A. 44th Amendment

B. 73rd Amendment

C. 84th Amendment

D. 101st Amendment

Reveal Answer and Explanation

Correct Answer: C – 84th Constitutional Amendment

The 84th Constitutional Amendment Act, 2001 extended the seat-allocation freeze framework.

Exam Trigger: Extension of Freeze = 84th Amendment.

Question 4

Consider the following statements:

1. The 87th Constitutional Amendment enabled constituency readjustment based on the 2001 Census.

2. The constitutional seat-allocation freeze automatically ends on 1 January 2027.

Which of the statements given above is/are correct?

A. 1 only

B. 2 only

www.civilservicegurukul.com

C. Both 1 and 2

D. Neither 1 nor 2

Reveal Answer and Explanation

Correct Answer: A – 1 only

Statement 1 is correct. Statement 2 is incorrect because the constitutional provision refers to publication of relevant figures from the first census taken after 2026, not merely the beginning of 2027.

Question 5

With reference to the 106th Constitutional Amendment Act, 2023, consider the following statements:

1. It provides for reservation of approximately one-third of seats for women in specified legislative bodies.
2. Its implementation is linked to a future census and delimitation exercise.
3. It provides one-third reservation for women in the Rajya Sabha.

Which of the statements given above are correct?

A. 1 and 2 only

B. 2 and 3 only

C. 1 and 3 only

D. 1, 2 and 3

Reveal Answer and Explanation

Correct Answer: A – 1 and 2 only

The amendment provides for women's reservation in the Lok Sabha, State Legislative Assemblies and Delhi Legislative Assembly, subject to its implementation provisions. It does not extend this reservation to the Rajya Sabha.

15. UPSC Mains Practice Question

GS Paper II | Indian Polity and Federalism

Question: Delimitation presents a constitutional challenge of reconciling equal democratic representation with India's federal diversity. Critically examine and suggest measures to ensure a balanced and inclusive delimitation exercise.

Marks: 15 | Word Limit: 250 words

Reveal Model Answer

CIVIL SERVICE GURUKUL

Introduction

Delimitation involves readjustment of electoral constituencies and, where constitutionally permissible, legislative seat allocation. Articles 81, 82 and 170 provide the constitutional foundation for population-based representation.

Significance

- Promotes relatively equal electoral representation.
- Reflects demographic and urbanisation trends.
- Strengthens democratic legitimacy and accountability.

Major Challenges

- Different rates of population growth across States.
- Concerns regarding reduced relative representation of States achieving population stabilisation.
- Potential regional political imbalances.
- Protection of linguistic minorities and disadvantaged communities.
- Maintaining institutional independence and transparency.

Way Forward

- Adopt transparent and evidence-based constitutional arrangements.
- Ensure meaningful consultation with all States.
- Strengthen independent implementation mechanisms.
- Evaluate transitional safeguards and alternative seat-allocation arrangements.
- Protect inclusive representation while respecting democratic equality.

Conclusion

Delimitation should strengthen both representative democracy and cooperative federalism. A transparent, consultative and constitutionally sound approach can reconcile demographic realities with India's regional diversity and promote inclusive national governance.

17. Frequently Asked Questions

What is delimitation in India?

Delimitation is the determination or readjustment of electoral constituency boundaries and, where constitutionally permitted, legislative seat allocation.

Which Article deals with parliamentary delimitation?

Article 82 provides for readjustment after a census in the manner determined by Parliament through law.

Is the Delimitation Commission a constitutional body?

No. It is a statutory body constituted under parliamentary legislation.

Does delimitation automatically take place in 2026?

No. The constitutional freeze refers to publication of relevant figures of the first census taken after 2026. The subsequent exercise must follow the applicable constitutional and legislative framework.

Why are some States concerned about delimitation?

States with lower population growth may be concerned that population-based seat redistribution could reduce their relative parliamentary influence.

What is the relationship between delimitation and women's reservation?

The 106th Constitutional Amendment links implementation of women's legislative reservation to a prescribed census and subsequent delimitation exercise.

Has the reported November 2026 delimitation bill become law?

The reported possibility of introduction does not establish enactment. The actual legislative status must be verified from official parliamentary records.

Why is delimitation important for UPSC?

It connects constitutional provisions, electoral reforms, demographic transition, federalism, social justice and democratic governance.

18. Conclusion

India's future delimitation exercise represents an important opportunity to strengthen democratic representation while preserving the country's federal character.

Electoral equality, population stabilisation, regional diversity and inclusive representation must be considered together rather than as isolated policy objectives.

A constitutionally sound framework supported by transparent data, meaningful consultation and independent implementation can help reconcile competing concerns and strengthen India's representative democracy.
